

Notes on Contributors

PETER ALCOCK is a science graduate who has subsequently become interested in South African history and indigenous knowledge. He has published two books on the latter topic and is considering a third such book.

BILL BIZLEY was a long-standing member of the English Department on the Pietermaritzburg campus of the University of Natal and has served on the Natalia editorial committee for many years.

DUNCAN DU BOIS, a retired teacher, is currently engaged on doctoral research into the development of the Natal South Coast. He is also a ward councillor representing the Bluff in the eThekweni Municipality.

TERENCE KING is a former professor of Fine Art at the University of Natal and now professor emeritus.

STEVEN KOTZE has had a varied career which includes working for the late David Rattray as a guide at the Fugitives' Drift Lodge, and is at present the research officer at the local history museums in Durban.

CHRISTOPHER MERRETT is a former University of Natal Librarian, a former Administrator of the Pietermaritzburg campus of the University, and now Letters' Editor at The Witness.

Born in Poland, JAN ZACHAREWICZ (83) came to Pietermaritzburg during the Second World War as a child refugee from a Russian labour camp. He finished school at St Charles, joined the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate (OMI) and was sent to study theology in Rome. For many years he was Professor of Sacred Scripture at OMI's St Joseph's Theological College at Cedara, outside Pietermaritzburg. He eventually left the priesthood, married, and taught English and History at various high schools. He now lives in retirement in the Cape.